Hi Amanda,

Thanks for getting back to me. I'd like to proceed with option 1.

To summarize, I received a parking ticket because, as stated on the ticket, I had not paid for parking. This was not true; I had paid for parking (2 hours worth) but had mistakenly selected the wrong car in the parking app. I previously made this mistake in 2022. When I reached out to the parking department in 2022, they acknowledged the error and voided the ticket. When I contacted the parking department this time, the city employee could see that I paid, but would not void the ticket because I made this same mistake, and the city has an unwritten policy that such errors may only be corrected once. I was then advised that I could file an appeal and dispute the ticket in district court. I ultimately paid the ticket because it would not be feasible for me to take a half-day off from work to contest a parking violation.

That said, I would like the parking committee to review this policy/practice and consider a policy for instances like this, that is, where a ticket is issued based on selection of the wrong car, rather than non-payment.

Thank you,

Elizabeth Lahey
